West and South Walls Five Stories High Collapsed Carrying Five
Firemen Down—Woman Jumped From Sixth Story—
Heavy Smoke Baffled Firemen—Many Overcome by It.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—(Bulletin.)—The big furniture and upholstery establishment of Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., 1219-21 Market street is burning. Men and women are reported to be jumping from high windows and several are said to be burning to death.

The smoke is thick and baffles the firemen. Every ambulance in the city is hurrying to the scene. Telephone messages just received say the known dead number eight at this time, 10:50 a.m.

At 10:50 the west and south walls, five stories high, collapsed, carrying several firemen with them.

A woman jumped from the sixth floor of an adjoining building and was killed.

John Wanamaker's store is only a stone's throw away and the firm's fire brigade is on duty on the roof.

Firemen say they never encountered such smoke. Dozens have been temporarily overcome by it.

The fire is in the very heart of the city's business activity. Ivins, Dietz and Magee's carpet warehouse on the opposite side of Market street is on fire and the Hotel Vendig at Twelfth and Market streets also caught. The guests had been warned by the smoke and the assembling engines and there was no panic.

N. Snellenberg's department store is at Twelfth and Market. It has been menaced several times and the roof is filled with fire fighters. The excitement in the neighborhood is intense. In a small street in the rear of the Hunt-Wilkinson building are the charred corpses of several women.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—(Bulletin.)—12:05 p. m.—The police estimate the dead at 17; injured 30.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—Today's great fire started at the bottom of the new freight elevator shaft in the extreme rear of the Hunt and Wilkinson Company's building. With incredible rapidity the flames ascended the elevator shaft, igniting the flooring and ceilings of each of the eight floors.

In less than ten minutes the flames had swept throughout the entire building, both front and rear. All exit was prevented. Even the fire escapes were flame enveloped and except those on the ground floor and second floor, all other workmen and salesmen in the building, the entire number of whom is estimated at sixty, were forced to jump from the windows. More than a dozen leaped from the rear windows. So fiercely and rapidly had the fire spread that the firemen could prepare no apparatus to catch those who jumped. It is certain that twelve perished in the flames, eight of them being women, and thirty are injured.

The fire was under control at 12:15 o'clock this afternoon. The names of the dead are not procurable at the present hour.

POWERS TRIAL

Scene of the Case Transferred Today from Georgetown to Frankfort.
Argument of the Case.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 25.—The scene of the Powers case was transferred to the scene of the tragedy this morning. The judge, jury, prisoner and counsel left at 7:45 this morning for Frankfort. The prosecution presented a mass of testimony in rebuttal last night, mostly witnesses who heard witnesses for the defense say before the tragedy that Goebel would be killed. Then the defense announced that they had no witnesses in rebuttal, and the case was closed. Judge Cantrill announced that each side would be given four hours for argument. The defense objected, saying they could not possibly present their case in that time. The Judge said if circumstances would permit he might give more time. Jim Howard, who was convicted as a principal in Goebel's murder and was granted a new trial, was brought here yesterday to swear he had no moustache at the time of the tragedy.

Speeches will be made on the side of the prosecution by Victor Bradley Tom Campbell and Prosecuting Attorney Franklin in the order named; for the defense, Judge Simms, Judge Morton, and ex-Congressman Owens will probably speak tomorrow.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 25.—James B. Howard was brought from Frankfort under a heavy guard to testify in the Powers trial. He contradicted the testimony of Chief Justice James Hazelrigg, who testified that he saw a man with a black moustache on the step of the executive building after Goebel was shot, and that when he saw Jim Howard on trial he thought it was the same man, but he could not be certain. The defense rested its case, and the state introduced rebuttal testimony. A dozen witnesses swore that different witnesses of the defense had said ominously, "Goebel will never be seated, he will be killed," "it is fixed," or words of like effect.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Dr. P. M. Rixey, surgeon to the late President McKinley, made a report today on the case. He says McKinley died while in the line of duty and therefore Mrs. McKinley is entitled to a pension. Congress will no doubt take Dr. Rixey's view of the case. He also says there was absolutely no evidence of poison on the bullet, but that death was due to gangrene of parts injured by the bullets.

St. Louis Blaze.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 25.—The Cupples block, a great wholesale business block, occupying a whole square, was threatened with total destruction by fire this morning. The flames were subdued after inflicting a loss estimated at $250,000.

POPULATION IN 1910
ONE HUNDRED MILLIONS.

Washington, Oct. 25.—It is expected that the census committees of both houses of Congress at the coming session will consider legislation looking to the establishment of a permanent census bureau. This action has been agitated for several years, and the movement will be renewed this session. It is claimed at the census office that approximately three-quarters of a million dollars could be saved from the cost of the next census.

Director Merriam estimates that the total population of the United States including the new possessions, in 1910 would be about 100,000,000 people.

FEAR

THAT RICH CONCERNS WILL LEAVE ILLINOIS

AS A RESULT OF SUPREME COURT DECISION.

THE TAX RATE TO BE REDUCED

And Burden Lifted from the Poor People, But It May Bankrupt Some of the Big Concerns.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—The jubilation following the sweeping corporation and franchise taxing decision rendered Thursday by the supreme court, as telegraphed the Advocate has given way in a measure to the fear that many of the big corporations will be driven from Illinois unless special corporate taxing laws are soon enacted. By the decision it is estimated that from $200,000,000 to $335,000,000 will be added to the assessment lists of Cook county. The city, the county, the drainage board and the public schools will have their coffers satisfactorily supplied with funds should existing laws not suffer alteration. One noteworthy effect will be a reduction of the tax rate as a result of the great addition to the assessment lists, thus lifting a heavy burden off the shoulders of the poor.

The decision opens the way, so those who have won the fight contend, for legal proceedings to collect back taxes for the last twenty-five years on corporation stock and franchises but to attempt to collect back taxes for a quarter of a century on the market value of the stock of corporations organized in Illinois, it is admitted by city officials would bankrupt the companies. That every corporation in the state is included in the decision is set forth plainly.

In the hands of corporation counsel Walker is now a list of 4,000 corporations having a capitalization of more than $1,500,000,000. All these it is argued, must come within the verdict.

UNION

OF CHICAGO SERVANT GIRLS TO COLLAPSE.

Meetings Are Attended by the Leaders Only—The End is Near at Hand.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—After a six months crusade against the unreasonable mistreatment of the servant girls' union, known in labor circles as the Working Women's Association of America, is on the point of disintegration. For the last three weeks its meetings have been attended by the leaders and not the servants. Last night was to have been the culmination of the movement but it was not.

"We had the constitution there," said Miss Ellen Lindstrom, head of the movement, "but it was laid on the table, or rather under the table."

The leaders still assert that there are many servants interested in the movement, but admit they will not attend the meetings in force. At the last four meetings there have not been more than twelve persons and last night there were but eight women.

WILL LIPTON RECONSIDER?

Glasgow, Oct. 25.—It is rumored here that Sir Thomas Lipton will challenge for the America's cup in 1902, with Shamrock I.

George's Father.

Augustine Washington, the father of George Washington, was engaged in 1732 in making pig iron at Accokeek furnace, in Stafford county, Va., about fifteen miles from Fredericksburg, when his famous son was born. This furnace had been built by the Principio company, composed of English capitalists, as early as 1726, on land owned by Augustine Washington, aggregating about 1,600 acres and containing iron ore. Mr. Washington becoming the owner of one-sixth of the furnace property in consideration of the transfer of his land to the company.

PRISONER

Who is Serving Twenty Year Sentence
For Manslaughter, May be Released—New Evidence.

Findlay, O., Oct. 25.—Frank Carman, a Hancock county prisoner serving a 20-year sentence in the Ohio penitentiary for the killing of Officer Holly several years ago, may become a free man on the strength of evidence unearthed by the local police authorities. The shooting occurred while Carman and several companions were attempting to burglarize the Nickel-Plate freight house at Mortimer, and were entrapped by a squad of police from this city, who had been notified that an attempt would be made, by Frank Bushong, one of the robbers.

The revolver taken from Carman was of a caliber considerably smaller than the bullet taken from Holly's body, but in spite of this the jury found him guilty of manslaughter. Now it develops that on that occasion Bushong carried a revolver of exactly the same caliber as the bullet recovered, and Carman's friends are confident they can secure his release.

The name of the other man is Geo. B. Farr and he is supposed to be living in Columbus. The woman says he abandoned her seven years ago and she applied for a divorce, but was never granted a decree. She thought she was at liberty to remarry. Quickert has sent his bride of two days back to her brother's home. He says he will never remarry her unless she gets a divorce.

SCHLEY

REVIEWS SANTIAGO BATTLE
ON THE STAND.

CAMPAIGN FROM START TO THE FINISH IS COVERED.

TELLS IT TO COURT OF INQUIRY.

Drafting of a Plan of Battle, Consultations With Officers, Coaling, Squadron's Movements.

Washington, Oct. 25.—At the court of inquiry Admiral Schley was on the stand in his own behalf, relating the story of the Santiago campaign. A large crowd listened attentively to the narrative. "I was a commodore," Admiral Schley began, in response to the request of his counsel, Mr. Rayner, for a connected narrative of the campaign, "and was ordered to command the flying squadron on the 28th of March, 1898, and served until the 20th day of June of the same year in that capacity." He had taken command of the squadron at Hampton Roads, Va., hoisting his flag on the cruiser Brooklyn. After relating the organization of the squadron at the Virginia port, he said that he had called the commanding officers of the vessels constituting that squadron together, and then he added: "The plan of campaign was discussed. I put the squadron immediately upon a war footing, established pickets and patrols and also the masking of lights."

Admiral Schley immediately plunged into the campaign by outlining at this point the plan which he had indicated to his commanding officers before leaving Hampton Roads, saying: "During this time I explained to all the commanding officers that, as it would be impossible to contrive a plan of battle that would meet unforeseen contingencies, the general plan of the squadron would be to cruise in line of battle, and its general principle would be to attack the head and leading vessels, concentrating the in order, first, to obtain the moral effect, and second, to throw them into confusion, making a victory over them probably very much more successful and complete."

The admiral then detailed the target practice the squadron indulged in daily, saying that no day was bad enough to prevent its continuance. He also said that the squadron was kept in readiness so far as coal, water and supplies were concerned. The flying squadron arrived at Key West on the 17th, and on the next day he went ashore to pay his respects to Commodore Remy, after having saluted his flag. Continuing his narrative the admiral said:

"While there the commodore showed me a telegraphic order from the honorable secretary of the navy directing me to proceed with all dispatch to the blockade of Havana. During the time I was on shore, after having had my conference with him, there were several of the Cuban people resident there who informed me that the province in which Cienfuegos was situated, and from that to the westward, was almost thoroughly occupied by Spanish troops, and that we had better be careful in any attempt at intercourse. I hastened off and on my way to the ship in the afternoon I thought I saw the New York approaching. At all events, when I got on board, determining to go at once off Santiago, the flagship had arrived and salutes were exchanged. I went on board to pay my respects and also to talk over the situation with Admiral Sampson. I found that the admiral was very much worn, and necessarily so, because his responsibility had been very great. He had had great trouble in keeping his squadron together, and he appeared to me as if he was in a good deal of anxiety, which I could readily appreciate. He showed me

A Number of Orders.

Among them was one which stated that a division of the two squadrons had been decided upon, one for the north and the other for the south coast of Cuba, in which he was given the preference of command.

"The order, if I remember correctly, stated that, under any circumstances, I was to remain with my command, and I asked him which of the two stations he would take, and he said he proposed to hold the Havana or north one. He also told me that, whichever side I went on, to remember that they were very heavily fortified, and that his confidential instructions, which he delivered to me verbally, were that we were not to risk our battleships against the fortified places of the coast until after the Spanish squadron had been disposed of. My recollection now is that he told me the fleet was at Curacao. The impression left on my mind was that it was somewhere in the Venezuelan gulf, and that it was supplied with ammunition and stores destined to Havana, and that that was undoubtedly the point it was destined to reach. We looked over maps, and I must say I agreed with

HIDE BOUND REPUBLICAN POLITICS.

There are 21 Congressmen from Ohio, and according to the relative average vote of the two parties, a fair and just apportionment would give the Republicans 11 members and the Democrats 10. Yet the Republicans have the Congressional districts of the State so shamefully gerrymandered, that the Democrats can only elect 4 Congressmen, while the Republicans hog the persimmons with 17. To perpetuate this manifest injustice is one of the miserable reasons offered by Republican managers and their party organ why Republican voters must not compliment popular "Billy" Miller for State Senator because he is a good fellow. The fact that "Billy" Miller, who was the most popular member of either party in the Senate when he previously represented this district, will be invaluable as a promoter of every local interest pertaining to Newark is of no consequence to these Republican politicians or their organ. There is no consideration that equals their desire to perpetuate a partisan wrong and injustice to the Democracy. They would rather that their party should continue this partisan outrage than that Newark city should have an efficient representative in the Senate who would be a hustler in promoting every local interest and measure pertaining to our city and county, and beneficial to all our citizens—Republicans as well as Democrats.

PATRIOTIC AND REASONABLE.

As a rule, the thick-and-thin Republican organs of the state have been endeavoring to use the assassination of President McKinley as an argument against the Democratic ticket.

On the other hand, that portion of the press which is not blindly partisan deprecates the policy of dragging the deplorable death of the President into partisan politics. The Columbus Evening Dispatch, an Independent Republican paper, whose editor, William D. Erickell, was one of President McKinley's very intimate personal friends, has this to say, which shows that a Republican as well as a Democrat may be both patriotic and reasonable: "The murder of President McKinley does not demand the vindication of any state policy, or national policy for that matter. It was a blow alike to all citizens regardless of party. There was no political principle involved in the motives which were behind the fatal attack on him. The serpent of anarchy has no political preferences, although he may be encouraged by certain so-called 'politicians,' whose weapons are not principles even of political parties, but are mere daggers of personal vilification.

"The maintenance of good order and the preservation of this government against the offscourings of other countries, the assassins of public officers and the haters of all government are one thing, the success of political parties is another. The good citizens of Ohio are too prudent and wise to permit a confusion of the two."

A POOR EXCUSE.

The Republican leaders and papers are offering as an excuse for the inequalities of taxation which have been growing under the past ten years of Republican rule in Ohio, that they can not correct them under the state constitution.

This is a mere subterfuge, but even if it were true, the Republican legislature during that time could have submitted an amendment to the organic law, making it possible to distribute the tax-burdens fairly.

The truth of the matter is that the Republican leaders are committed to the interests of the trusts and great corporations, which furnish them with unlimited election funds, and care little or nothing for the interests of the masses.

If the voters, without regard to political affiliations, desire justice they will go to the polls on November 5th and turn these unfaithful leaders out of power. And if they will go to the polls and vote their common sentiments they will bring about a change.

The Ohio Republican managers have made their usual call on federal office-holders in Washington for "voluntary" contributions.

Ohio's campaign will furnish nothing more ludicrous than the loving-brother continuous performance of Hanna and Foraker.

Was Hanna's declaration that he intended to remain boss of the Republican machine intended as a threat to anybody?

When Rear Admiral Schley attends a Washington theatre he gets more applause than the actors; and he deserves it all.

The hard work the big Republicans are putting in Ohio belies their claim of a cinch on an increased majority.

JUDGES JONES AND WICKHAM

High Compliment Paid by the Delaware, Ohio, Journal, an Independent Newspaper to the Candidates for Common Pleas Judges—Biographical Sketches.

The Delaware Journal (Independent) pays the following high tribute to the worth of the two Democratic candidates for Common Pleas judges, Hon. John David Jones of Licking county, and Hon. Emmet M. Wickham of Delaware county.

JOHN DAVID JONES.

John David Jones was born in Granville, Licking county, Ohio, March 2, 1845. His early life was spent on the farm, in the winter-months attending the district school and later Denison University, at Granville. In August, 1863, the subject of this sketch enlisted in the Second O. V. Heavy Artillery and served in the Civil War until its close, in August, 1865.

The following shows in brief where he spent a part of his useful life: 1865-1866—attended Denison university.

1866-1867—taught school. June, 1867, commenced the study of law in the office of J. B. Jones, Esq., of Newark, Ohio.

1869 was admitted to the bar in the District Court at Newark.

1873—was elected member of board of education as a Democrat and was re-elected twice thereafter. In August, 1876, Mr. Jones was married to Miss Rachel A. Giffin, daughter of Hon. C. B. Giffin of Newark.

In 1881, was elected Senator of the 56th General Assembly, at which time Mr. Jones resigned as member of Board of Education.

In October, 1889, Mrs. Jones died, leaving the father to care for three sons and two daughters, the oldest being 10 years of age, the youngest, about two months.

In 1890, Mr. Jones was nominated on the Democratic ticket, without opposition, for prosecuting attorney of Licking county, and was elected.

In 1892, he was married to Jessie F. Giffin, sister of his deceased wife.

In 1893, re-elected prosecuting attorney without opposition.

In 1896, Mr. Jones was elected Judge of the Common Pleas Court in the First sub-division, Sixth Judicial District. At this year's Democratic convention, Judge Jones was re-nominated for Common Pleas judge.

Judge Jones is most highly esteemed in the community in which he has always lived, a lawyer of pronounced ability, an honest citizen and most popular among the legal fraternity throughout the state.

HON. E. M. WICKHAM.

Judge Wickham was born in Genoa township, near the Delaware and Franklin county line, October 20, 1859. His early life was spent on his father's farm, attended the district school during the winter months, during the summer months working among the neighbor farmers saving his earnings to buy the books necessary while attending school the balance of the year. In 1880 he began teaching in his home district. He continued teaching until 1892. In 1889 he began the study of law, in connection with his school work, under the preceptorship of Hon. F. M. Marriott. In 1891 he was admitted to the bar. In September following he located in Delaware and began the practice of law in the office of Hon. F. M. Marriott, assisting him in his large practice until 1895 when a partnership was formed for a period of three years.

The firm of Marriott & Wickham was recognized as the leading law firm of Delaware county and during the three years enjoyed a large and successful practice. Judge Wickham is essentially a Democrat in every sense of the word, his ancestors having adhered to the principles of Democracy ever since the founding of the party.

In July, 1896, at Centerville, he was nominated on the first ballot as candidate for Common Pleas judge of the First sub-division of the Sixth District and at the subsequent election was elected by a large majority.

The habits of industry, economy and application to study acquired in his youth have clung to him in later years and as a deep thinker as well as constant student of law he is well known. He is a fine lawyer, an excellent scholar, a genial and obliging gentleman. His clear judgment in legal matters eminently qualified him for the high position he has so satisfactorily filled and his re-nomination is proof to the Delaware county friends that he has worn the judicial ermine with honor and credit.

THE DRUMMER

Dumpey was a drummer in a foot battery of the United States artillery stationed at one of the harbor posts in the east. His descriptive list showed him 5 feet 1 inch high, sallow complexion, brown hair and thirty-six years of age. I can see him now, with his drum slung from his neck, his little figure drawn up to its full height, proudly showing us how to make the drum "talk."

"This is what we played at Mission Ridge." And then he would begin. One heard the tramp of marching feet, the thunder of cannon, the rattle of musketry, the shouts and hurrahs of the men, and, above all, the rub-a-dub-dub, the rub-a-dub-dub of the drum. It sent the cold shivers down our backs, the blood jumping through our veins. Then came the slow and solemn beat of the muffled drum, the long, melancholy, almost human, roll, and we knew that the battle was over and that the dead were being laid away to their last rest. The tears in our eyes, a choking in our throats, and then—

They dressed me up in soldier clothes, They treated me so kindly, And yet I never could forget The girl I left behind me.

It was a sad day for the battery, and particularly for Dumpey, when the Junior Lieutenant left our post by transfer. The very next day Dumpey was in the guardhouse with charges against him for drunkenness. Intercussion proved of no avail—the captain was determined to make an example of him—but the court was lenient; so after a month's confinement Dumpey came back to us, but an altered man. Not that his manner had changed toward us—he was still our friend—but his boyishness and lightness of heart seemed gone.

"He'll get me yet," was all he said when we asked him the trouble. "He," of course, meant the captain, who for some unaccountable reason had taken a strong dislike to the lowly drummer. Things went from bad to worse. Dumpey was in the guardhouse continually, first for one thing and then another, which, though trivial enough in their way, were rapidly building up a bad reputation for him, which he did not really deserve.

The end came when they found him drunk on guard. The general court which tried him found him guilty and sentenced him to be drummed out of the service. The colonel wrote to the reviewing authority rather strongly in his favor, but Dumpey was doomed. Nothing could save him, and the sentence was duly confirmed.

Never did sun shine brighter, never were skies bluer, never was nature more generous than on that dreadful May morning. We had all been to see Dumpey at the guardhouse the night before. We had shaken hands with him and carried him such boyish gifts as we could to assure him of our loyalty and friendship, and he, poor old boy, had turned his face away from us and wept like a child.

It was the first and only time I had ever seen a man drummed out of the service. I can never again see such a shocking sight of man's inhumanity to man.

I was a very young boy then; still I remember that the sun was bright and that the skies were blue. I remember that the air was soft and balmy. I remember that the flag, emblem of liberty and equality, threw out the glory of its stars and stripes straight and strong to the morning breeze. I remember that we all stood huddled together waiting—and then it came.

First the drums and fifes, then two platoons of men fully armed and equipped, their bayonets flashing and sparkling in the sunlight, and between them Dumpey, with head closely cropped and on his back a board marked "Drunkard."

And still—the sun shone, the skies were blue and the flag flapped gayly overhead.

On they came, the drums and fifes playing the "Rogues' March."

Poor old soldier, poor old soldier, Tarr'd and feathered and then drum'd out Because he couldn't keep sober.

Our hearts were in our throats, but we clinked our hands and held our places like men.

There was no music in the march. It was simply a wailing and sobbing of the drums—the drums to drum Dumpey out of the service; Dumpey, their champion, their hero, their king.

But on they came— Poor old soldier, poor old soldier. Just as they passed us we heard some one ask: "What makes him walk so queer? He seems to be limping."

Every boy there could have told him that it was the bullet he got at Mission Ridge, which the doctors had never been able to take out.

And on they came— Tarr'd and feathered and then drum'd out. At last they reached the salty port. Because he couldn't keep sober.

shrieked out the fifes, and a moment later Dumpey stood outside the fort a free man.

And then this worthless outcast, this drummed out drunkard, this limping, halting, wounded ex-soldier, who had played a man's part in the bitterest war the world has ever known, this drunken Dumpey, halted, quietly took the board marked "Drunkard" off his back, and, baring his close cropped head to the morning sun, looked up toward the flag and bravely cried out: "Three cheers for the stars and stripes!"

I have never forgotten it. Please God, I never will.

HEART DISEASE.

Some Facts Regarding the Rapid Increase of Heart Trouble.

Heart troubles, at least among the Americans, are certainly increasing, and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable, but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also the heart is affected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food. There is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action. Hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which can be found at most drug stores, and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

A QUESTION OF TEETH.

Did the Immortal George Wear Artificial or Natural Ones?

"George Washington's false teeth," which were supposed to have been made of ivory, are giving a certain class of freak historians about as much trouble as they must have given the venerable patriot who wore them," said one of the professors of the Smithsonian Institution to a reporter recently.

"Many times a year for several years this institution has been called upon to produce these mysterious teeth for the inspection of persons who insist that they are here."

"Our matter of fact answer to these inquiries that Washington had no false teeth, or at least if he did, that they are not in the possession of the museum, seems only to stimulate the inquiring mind to protest our statement. They proceed to give us authentic accounts of these teeth and always conclude with expressing the belief that they must be in the museum somewhere."

"Where or how the idea that Washington had false teeth originated is an unsolved mystery. That it is firmly believed by many is certainly a fact. There seems to be no authentic record of the Father of His Country possessing ivory teeth, and by a study of the bust we have of him, which was made but a few years before his death, there is no indication of an indentation along the line of the gums such as can be noticed in persons who have had their teeth drawn, even though they wear artificial ones. However, we will continue to answer the same question in the same way probably many times in the future."

According to some biographers Washington lost his teeth during his service as commander in chief of the Continental army and had a set of ivory ones made. These teeth, it is also stated, gave him much trouble because they did not fit.—Washington Star.

In my opinion the man who kills his fellow is the hero of barbarism; the man who risks his own life to save the lives of others is the only hero that a true civilization can honor.—Andrew Carnegie.

For all misfortunes there are two remedies—time and silence.

True happiness, with some people, consists of being able to say "I told you so."

STRIKES

ARE THEY EVER LOST?—ARTICLE BY D. A. HAYES.

Newark Friends of Mr. Hayes Will Be Especially Interested in This Week's Independent.

The many Newark friends of Mr. Dennis A. Hayes, who a few years ago worked as a glass blower at the Edward H. Everett factory, will be interested to read in the current issue of the Independent, a high standard weekly magazine published at 130 Fulton street, New York city, a three page article written by Mr. Hayes on the subject: "Strikes—Are They Ever Lost?"

The editor of the Independent prefaces the article with the following note:

Mr. Hayes is president of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association of the United States and Canada and vice president of the American Federation of Labor. The Glass Bottle Blowers' Association is the most prosperous of all labor organizations in proportion to its membership. Much of its strength lies in its rigid adherence to the system of conference between employers and employees, which is a conspicuous feature among its fundamental principles. Mr. Hayes himself is recognized as one of the labor leaders who has made the closest study of labor's relations with capital and of the economy of American industries. Although president of an organization which has no direct relations with the interests of iron and steel workers, he was called upon for counsel by the leaders of the recent strike of the Amalgamated Association.

The subject is well handled by Mr. Hayes who in conclusion says.

Organized labor welcomes intelligent criticism. It wants to get people to think, for the better the labor question is understood the sooner will it be solved. I believe that in the recent steel strike the spectacle of organized capital arbitrarily refusing to allow the Amalgamated Association to organize all the workmen who were willing to join will so emphasize the injustice of denying to labor the right of organization that it will do more toward establishing that right than could be accomplished by years of argument and persuasion. It has educated the people and in this sense the strike has not been lost; and this, in some degree, true of all other strikes.

I deplore the necessity for this sort of education and, in common with all labor leaders of modern thought of this age, believe that every means should be used to prevent strikes; but when a great evil is impending or a vital principle is at stake and all other means of prevention or preservation have failed, strikes are a necessity and should be carried on with vigor, at all ways, of course, within legal bounds. And when the Church and society shall have become fully aroused to the fact that there is something radically wrong in a system which invites such outbreaks, and realizing their responsibility in the matter shall set themselves diligently to work to ascertain the cause, the evil will be unearthed and removed; and as the "sword shall be beaten into plowshares and the spear into pruning hooks," so, I believe, from the strike will come "peace and good will to men." Strikes are never lost.

A LIVING BAROMETER.

The Crablike Spider That Poses as Yucatan's Weather Sharp.

In Yucatan, a land of many curiosities, there is a living barometer in the form of a small spider, called "am" on account of the effect produced by its poison. As far as its own conduct goes, the insect is inoffensive and can be handled with impunity, but if anybody has the misfortune to get one mysteriously mixed with his food he is certain to die after a few hours and meanwhile for some unexplained reason will frequently ejaculate "Am, am, am!" hence the name of the spider. Throughout the peninsula this is affirmed to be a fact, and if an am falls into fodder of horses or mules the animal that swallows it surely dies.

This spider is shaped like a crab, minus the claws, and is of a bright yellow color, with brown spots; the biggest could be accommodated upon a silver dime. Its favorite abode is among the leaves of the banana shrub, commonly, but erroneously, called tree. There it spins with extreme rapidity, its web, which is prodigiously large, considering the size of its architect, and proceeds to devour the flies that are unlucky enough to get entangled in the meshes of this astonishing little glutton, that is not satisfied with less than a dozen a day—that is to say, it consumes a good deal more than its own bulk. Its progeny is numerous and appears at first like more black specks; smaller than the smallest pin's head.

The sky may be blue and cloudless when suddenly the am commences taking in its sails, or, rather, gathering in its net, with neatness and dispatch, crumpling the whole of the material into its diminutive body entirely out of sight. A few minutes completes the job, and the spider takes up its position on the under surface of one of the great leaves to be lulled by the gentle swaying and sheltered while the storm rages. It is for this that the am has prepared, and never is it mistaken. When the web is taken in, rain will certainly fall within an hour.

The moment the am is touched it feigns death and lets itself drop, showing no sign of life until again placed upon a leaf or on the ground. Many a one has lain in the palm of the writer's hand inert, all its legs drawn close to its body, while it was examined at leisure, even being picked up in the fingers without its manifesting any life.

BEAUTY SPOTS.

Try lemon juice for whitening the neck. Apply it with a linen cloth. After the head has been shampooed, whenever possible, give the head a sun bath.

A writer states that oily hands may be made comfortable and touchable by wetting them once or twice a day while clean with cologne, alcohol or toilet vinegar.

A good circulation is essential to the growth of the hair as well as to its color and fineness. A frequent, vigorous brushing with a stiff brush is the best method of obtaining this.

A writer upon the complexion says the best way to treat freckles, a sure cure in all but very obstinate cases, is to touch them night and morning with a camel's hair brush after dipping it in lemon juice.

For a greasy skin nothing is better than the combination of an ounce of dried rose leaves, half a pint of white wine vinegar and half a pint of rosewater. Let the vinegar stand on the rose leaves for a week, then add the rosewater. Use a tablespoonful in a cup of distilled water.

A Geological Fallacy.

Probably the most wild and unjustifiable of all the crude beliefs respecting geological resources is that which holds to the conviction that by going deep enough the drill is sure to find something of value, no matter at what point the work of boring is commenced.

There are numerous wise persons in every community, estimable, influential and in the highest degree public spirited who are convinced that the question, for example, of finding coal in their special locality is simply a matter of the depth to which the explorations are carried. Rock oil and natural gas are recognized as desirable products in every progressive community, and every such community contains persons in other respects intelligent who are ready to stake their own fortune and that of their nearest friends on the belief that oil and gas are everywhere underneath the surface and that their sources can be tapped with the drill provided only there is sufficient capital to keep up the process of drilling long enough.—Mines and Minerals.

Professional Shoppers.

Professional shoppers are employed by a certain, large firm of London drapers to test the abilities of shop assistants. This firm owns over thirty large shops and employs nearly 1,000 assistants. To find out whether every customer is politely served a number of lady customers are employed to call at the various shops. They are told to give as much trouble as possible and sometimes to leave without making a purchase after looking at nearly everything in the shop. Should the unfortunate assistant's temper not be equal to the strain, or should a single word be said that might offend, a report will be made to the head office, and lead to the dismissal of the sorely tried hand of silks and ribbons.

An Example.

"After all, it isn't the big troubles that bother a fellow so much; it's the little things that annoy us most." "That's right. Why, they say a hornet's sting is only one-thirty-second of an inch long."—Philadelphia Press.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

Between Cars in Buckeye Lake Road Gravel Pit Near the Old Fort Friday Morning the Fate of Lee Patterson, Former B. & O. Conductor.

A terrible accident, and one that resulted in the snuffing out of a human life in instant, and without warning, occurred at 8:15 o'clock this morning at the gravel pit of the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company, on the Zartman farm, a quarter of a mile south of the Old Fort.

Lee Patterson, a man about 40 years old, and a resident of Newark for a long time, was the victim.

Mr. Patterson had been working for the company, under Mr. W. T. Davis, the superintendent of construction, ever since the work on the road was begun, and was always considered by Mr. Davis a safe and reliable man. For some time he boarded at a house in the North End, but decided to change his boarding house on account of the distance, and for the past few days, had been stopping at the "Last Chance," kept by Mr. Bollwine, near the Old Fort.

For a long time he had been desirous of securing a position as a brakeman on the gravel train, and on Thursday this desire was realized. This morning he went to work as usual. About 8:15 o'clock this morning the engine in charge of Engineer Thomas Shaffer, together with three empty gravel cars, backed down into the gravel pit, where a loaded car was standing. Mr. Patterson was standing on the bank when the cars were backed down, and started to couple the empties on to the loaded car, when Superintendent Davis told him not to couple the cars. Mr. Davis then turned around to talk to one of the men and when he looked around again it was to see Mr. Patterson pinned fast between two cars.

It appeared that after Patterson had been told not to couple the cars he had started to go between them, when he was caught between the bumpers. His stomach crushed in, and he was almost instantly killed. Some of the men who had witnessed the accident signalled the engineer to go ahead, when the body was released. It was then carried into a shed close by and one of the workmen went to the Zartman farm residence which was near by, and telephoned for Dr. Smith. Colonel Scott Evans and Undertaker McGonagle.

Dr. Smith was the first one to arrive, but his services were not needed, and he pronounced the man dead.

Colonel Evans was also quickly on hand and viewed the remains. He secured the names of a number of witnesses and will hold an inquest later.

The remains were taken charge of by Undertaker McGonagle, brought to this city in the ambulance and prepared for interment, but at this writing no arrangements have been made for the funeral.

The deceased had always been regarded as one of the hardest working and most reliable men in the employ of the company, until within the past two or three weeks, when it is said that he had been drinking pretty hard, although he was perfectly sober at the time of the accident this morning. He is a married man, but became estranged from his wife, it is reported, on account of his drinking habits, and they have not lived together for some time. Mrs. Patterson is at present living on Race street in the East End, where she keeps a boarding house.

A peculiarly sad coincidence in connection with the fatal accident, which befell Mr. Lee Patterson, was that his first cousin, "Bud" Patterson, who fires the B. & O. yard engine 567, for Engineer Dan Francis, was virtually an eye witness to the tragedy. The 567 was switching on the Shawnee division, in plain sight of the scene of the accident, and Engineer Francis, noticing the crowd remarked, "Those fellows must be on a strike."

He then noticed a form being laid down, and realized that an accident had occurred. He sent one of his crew to find out, and upon returning he told Mr. Francis that an old B. & O. conductor named John Patterson had been killed. "I'll bet that's your cousin Lee," remarked Engineer Francis to his fireman, and thus it proved to be.

ANCIENT UMBRELLAS

THEY FIGURED IN CHURCHES IN THE EARLY CHRISTIAN DAYS.

When First Adopted by the Public, They Seem to Have Been Utilized Solely as Sun Protectors—Once an Attribute of Dignity.

In the early Christian churches a large umbrella usually hung over the priest, and it is said that from this custom it became one of the attributes of cardinals appointed from basilican churches. For years the dukes of Venice carried umbrellas of state, and in 1288 Pope Alexander III, declared that these should be surmounted by golden statues of the annunciation.

Michael Morosini was the first Venetian layman to carry an umbrella, which consisted of a small, flat square of green stuff, over which was a conical spiral. Soon after the umbrella was adopted by fashionable Venetian dukes. According to Coryat's "Cruetities" (1611), the Italian umbrella was a small canopy and was made of leather, extended by a series of wooden hoops. He says umbrellas were used by horsemen, who, resting the handles on the thigh as they rode, bare them so that they should "minister shadow unto them" for shelter against the scorching sun.

In the Harleian manuscripts, now in the British museum, there is a manuscript No. 643 a crude illustration showing the figure of a yocman holding an umbrella over his head, which leads me to infer that umbrellas were known in England even in the early Anglo Saxon period.

Beck, as quoted in the Draper's Dictionary, asserts that at the time that Stephen usurped the crown of England (twelfth century) umbrellas were in common use among the English. The first mention of the umbrella in English literature is in Florio's "World of Wonders" (1598), where it is described as a "kind of round fan or shadowing that they use to ride with in summer in Italy; a little shade."

In 1556 an umbrella was exhibited in the "Museum Tridescantianum; or, Collection of Rarities Preserved at South Lambeth, Near London, by John Tridescant," which was known as "one of the wonders of the ark."

In the church of Cartuelli, in Lancashire, England, there was preserved until a few years ago an umbrella said to be over 300 years old, which was used chiefly to protect the host.

References to the umbrella are to be found also in Blount's "Glossographia" (1674) and Phillips' "New World of Words" (1678). In the first reference reads: "Umbrello, a fashion of round and broad fans, wherewith the Indians (and from them our great ones) preserve themselves from the heat of the sun, and hence any little shadow, fan or other thing wherewith the women guard their faces from the sun."

The second reads: "Umbrello, a screen against the sun's heat, used chiefly by the Spaniards, among whom it is known by the name quitasol."

The imaginative Dean Swift in the "Tale of a Tub" (1696) depicts Jack, an ever resourceful type, making use of a parchment copy of his father's will as a nightcap when he went to bed and as an umbrella in rainy weather. Did the worthy Hanway take his cue from this or from Kersey, according to whom the umbrella was a "broad fan or screen commonly used by women to shelter them from rain?" The latter reference, made in 1709, is the first mention of it as a protector from the rain.

Later Bailey, who in his dictionary (1737) called it a parasol, defined it as "a sort of small canopy to keep off the rain."

Small, light umbrellas came into fashion among the ladies of the French court in 1675, and these were carried by attendants. Richelieu tells us that they were made of oiled cloth or leather and had ribs of whalebone. A century later they found favor with the men, who carried red umbrellas, with edges fringed with gold lace.

The precise date when Jonas Hanway, who died in 1786, introduced the umbrella into England is not recorded in any of the encyclopedias I have at hand, but they all state that he was popularly known as its introducer.

With the Dutch, as with the Indian grandees, the umbrella was first an attribute of dignity, and well it might be, for the prices paid for them at the Hague in 1650 ranged from $75 to $120 each. The Dutch colonists who settled at the Cape of Good Hope were not slow to insist on preserving the dignity of the umbrella, for Rijk van Tulbagh, governor of Cape Colony in 1752, enacted that "No one less in rank than a junior merchant or those among the citizens of equal rank, and the wives and daughters only of those who are or have been members of any council shall venture to use umbrellas, and those who are less in rank than merchants shall not enter the castle in fine weather with an open umbrella."—Frank H. Vizetelly in New York Times.

A Nongolfer's Opinion of Golf.

Imagine a great fat creature who ought to wear a turban and a long black robe to hide his grossness whacking a little white ball for miles and miles with a perfect surgery of instruments, whacking it other with a babyish solemnity or a childish rage, as fuck may have decided, and incidentally training an innocent-eyed little boy to swear and be a tip-hurting loafer. That's golf.—H. T. W. Wells in Pearson's Magazine.

To the Best of Her Knowledge.

A lady was looking for her husband and inquired anxiously of a housemaid, "Do you happen to know anything of your master's whereabouts?" "I'm not sure, mum," replied the careful domestic, "but I think they're in the wash."—Lathlander.

THE EYE OF AN ARTIST.

A Case Where It Was More Reliable
Than a Sailor's Optic.

Mr. N. Chevalier, the well known artist who accompanied the late Duke of Edinburgh on many of his travels, was once going from Dunedin to Lyttelton, New Zealand, by steamer. Anxious to catch the earliest glimpse of the coast he went on deck at dawn and was alarmed to see that the vessel was heading straight on to the land. Calling the officer's attention to the fact, he was told that it was only a fog bank. The artist maintained his point, but the second officer looked and confirmed his mate.

The artist then said: "Well, gentlemen, I will back my artist's eye against your sailor's eye, and I say that what you mistake for a fog bank is a low range of hills, and there is a range of mountains appearing above them."

But he was only laughed at, until the captain coming on deck found in the growing light that the artist was right and the seamen wrong. The vessel was out of its course, and there was only just time to avert disaster. The helmsman was dismissed in disgrace and the course given to the new steersman, but the vessel's head still pointed landward--the compass was all wrong.

The cause was discovered later. A commercial traveler had brought a box of magnets on board and deposited them in a stern cabin, causing what might have been a fatal deflection of the compass.

To return to the question of interpretation, the artist was dealing with the appearances which his eye was trained to see and his mind to interpret. A speck on the horizon might have remained a mere speck to him long after the sailors had interpreted the speck into a vessel of definite rig. There can be little doubt that the trained eye is accompanied by a sort of mental seeing, an instinct outrunning optics.

THE CHICKEN YARD.

No henhouse that is frequently dusted with lime will be infested with lice. Lime purifies the quarters and dries them. It is cheap and should be used plentifully.

Always have the nests so low that the hens can step in rather than be obliged to jump down.

If the fowls get too fat, oats as a single food are one of the best grains that can be given to lessen fat.

Mating birds to breed to a feather is a high art, to be acquired only by long practice, aided by close study.

A flat perch is best because of being the most comfortable to the feet and the best support to the breast.

There are three breeds of fowls that are pre-eminently valuable as egg producers. These are the Minorcas, Leghorns and Black Spanish.

A medium sized active male is twice as valuable as one that is large and extra heavy. If large size and weight are desired, select large hens, but the male should be active and vigorous.

When a fowl has canker and the mouth and throat are sore and ulcerated, wrap a soft rag around a lead pencil, dampen it slightly, dip in chlorate of potash and swab out the mouth clean and inject a drop of turpentine.

What Comes After Suicide?

On the whole, it is something of a pity that some of these fellows who cut their throats, blow out their brains or swallow poisons in order to rid themselves of their troubles cannot come back, so they might tell others who are troubled whether relief lies in that direction or not. It is more than probable that what they then could tell would deter other reckless men and women from following in their footsteps, and for that, if for no other reason, their return would be welcome. As Hamlet implied, it is better to bear the ills we know than to fly to those we know not of and there isn't much doubt that the suicides are not long in finding that out--Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Peach Legend.

Almost all fruits and flowers have their legend. One about the peach comes from Japan and tells how a poor, pious old couple were searching for food by the roadside. The woman found a peach, which she would not eat of, though starving, till she could share it with her husband. He cut it exactly in half, when an infant leaped forth. It was one of the gods, who had, he said, accidentally fallen out of the peach orchard of heaven while playing. He told them to plant the stone of the peach, and it brought them happiness, friends and wealth.

How a Plant Protects Itself.

One little plant of South Africa protects itself by assuming a curious likeness to a white lichen that covers the rocks. The plant has sharp pointed green leaves. These are placed close together, with their points upward, and on the tip of each leaf is a little white, scaly sheath. The resemblance of the smooth surface these present to the lichen growing on the rocks, beside which it is always found, is so great that it is not till you tread on it that you discover the deception--Fortnightly Review.

Her Savings.

"I'm so glad you told me to keep accounts, Henry," she said. "I have just been going over them, and I find that I have saved $200 in the last three months."

"Good!" he exclaimed. "Where's the money?"
"Oh, I haven't got the money," she answered. "but the accounts show that I have saved it just the same."--Chicago Post.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE FLAMING ARROW.

American plays by American authors should ever be interesting events in a community where Americanism is a dominant characteristic. In presenting "The Flaming Arrow" by Lincoln J. Carter, the American author at the Auditorium next Wednesday, Oct. 30, theater goers will have a chance to see an art creation worthy of the sort. The characters are deftly and carefully chosen. White Eagle, the young Apache, is a good type of civilized Indian as the stage has seen in a generation. His father, Black Eagle, represents that section of the brave and fearless but not less beloved Indian, whose astuteness and faithfulness was recognized and rewarded by the United States Government. Col. Fremont, represents a fine old type of active soldiers, his daughter Mary a womanly maiden whose bravery and love for truthfulness are characteristic of American women. Such are a few of the prominent characters the author has happily chosen as representatives together with a rascally Mexican, a treacherous lieutenant, a fun loving Negro and a witty Irishman. A tribe of Six Nations Indians from their wild and picturesque homes in native costumes and war head dress, adds genuineness and attractiveness to one of the prettiest word paintings the stage has ever seen.

HON. JOHN GRIGSBY MONDAY.

Frank Keenan's production of "Hon. John Grigsby" this season is the most important venture, in many respects in that popular actor's career. The play when first produced by Sol Smith Russell, won an immediate success. Mr. Keenan has gathered together a company that does it full justice, and he himself, in the title role, presents an impersonation of an old fashioned Illinois lawyer that stands first among the many fine portrayals with which he is credited. At the Auditorium, October 28, next Monday night.

They give a matinee at 2 p. m., Saturday, and close their week's engagement tomorrow night, presenting one of the strongest dramas ever written, entitled "The Cross of Gold."

A month ago he with a young soldier named Vermilion, who lives at Black Hand, deserted from Troop A, Thirteenth U. S. Cavalry, to which they had been assigned, stationed at Fort Keough, Montana. The story of the desertion was told in a special to the Advocate from the west at that time.

Lugenebeal went to the home of his mother in Frazeyburg where he was captured. The detectives went to the Vermilion home in Black Hand, going to the front door. Mrs. Vermilion locked this door and Vermilion escaped through the back door and took to the hills, and so far has not been captured.

LOCKED UP

Colored Fellow Accused of Assault and Battery on a White Woman in the Tubbs House.

Frank Ellis was locked up this morning in the county jail by Officers Rinehart and Zergiebel on a warrant charging assault and battery on a white woman. Ellis is a colored man. The two have been living together in apartments on the third floor of the old Tubbs House. Ellis told a reporter at the jail, that for a year and a half he has been keeping the woman, and having a job of cook at the camp grounds last week promised her $10. He came home late last Saturday night, and going to her room, she demanded the money. He said he was willing to give her the money if she would treat him half fair. He had heard that the money he gave her, she gave to a certain fellow to gamble with. Hot words passed and he went to his room, after which he went back and she refused to open the door. He left and made no attempt to see her until Thursday afternoon about four o'clock, when he noticed her door open and he went in. A quarrel followed and getting a gun she pointed it at him and threatened to shoot him. He then threw her down and took the weapon from her.

"Now that's the facts," he continued, "but I am liable to get the worst of it."

LETTER

Received by the Advocate From Engineer Barney Reilly, Now in Denver, Colo.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 21.—Well, here I am in Denver, Colo., some sixteen hundred miles from home and the capital of Old Licking. I met engineer John Ryan here last Thursday. Engineer Davy Loughrey, who accompanied me on my trip, and Mr. Ryan are visiting Mr. Loughrey's brother at Canon City, about 160 miles from Denver. I went down and spent Sunday with them and returned to Denver last night. During the day we visited the great Royal Gorge, on the line of the Denver and Rio Grande railway, which I think ranks with the greatest natural scenery in the country. The rocks rise perpendicularly on each side of the track to a height of 2600 feet, with just room enough for the road to pass through. We have been to the foot of Pike's Peak, but as the weather was so cold and the peak was covered with snow, we didn't go up to the top of the mountain.

Mr. Ryan, Loughrey and myself have quite an interesting account of our trip to give when we return home. Ryan and Loughrey join with me in declaring that for sociability and all around good fellows the Denver and Rio Grande boys have few equals and no superiors. Very respectfully,

BARNEY REILLY.

TWENTY-FOUR INITIATED.

Licking Rebekah Lodge of Newark initiated twenty-four ladies and gentlemen into the mysteries of the degree Thursday evening. A number of visitors were present, among those from Granville being Mr. and Mrs. Henry Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis DeBow, Mrs. Jane Evans, Mrs. Allie McCreary and Miss Lelia Barrick. After the initiation was over an elegant banquet was served.

A Broken Promise

"Uncle Reuben, why don't you go back to Tennessee to see the Baxters?" "Don't reckon I'll evah see ole Ten-see no mo', suh."

"Why not?" "You nevah hearn tell 'bout Miss Bell, I reckon. She wuz Miss Bell du Bose. They place wuz two plantations down thu rivah fum ours. Miss Bell wuz Mistah Clay Baxtah's sweetheart. They wuz allus sweethearts, even w'en she wuz uh little gal an' rig ahin' Mistah Clay on he pony tuh school. Evahbody 'roun' thu neighborhood know they gwine tuh git married some day, an' they sho' did love one 'nother. Tha's how come I made thu promise tuh Miss Bell."

"W'en thu war break out, Mistah Clay say he gwine go. They git up uh big comp'ny right thah in thu country, an' Mistah Clay he is cap'n. You see, w'en Mistah Clay wuz uh boy, I kindah take kerr uv him; saddled his hoss an' rid tuh school fah him an' tuk him possum huntin' an' fishin' an' wuz gen'ally 'sponsible fah his raisin'. W'en he commence talkin' 'bout thu wah, natchally I wan' go too. So I beg an' beg an' beg, tell by an' by he say all right ef Mas' Gawge say so. Mas' Gawge he say he don' keer, an' tha's how I come tuh be wif Mistah Clay."

"Thu day we start evahbody what know us wuz ovah at our house watchin' us start. Miss Bell she come ovah early an' she an' Mistah Clay they go down by thu front fence what nobody heah 'em an' talk uh whole lot. W'en they come up to thu front po'ch what Mas' Gawge an' thu res' wuz standin', Miss Bell's eyes sho look sof'. You don' know, 'bout Miss Bell's eyes. They's great big brown eyes tha' look at you like they see cl'ar through you an' ovah on thu othah side. Miss Bell she cum ovah tuh me an' she say: "Reuben, you'se gwine wif Mistah Clay?"

"I say, 'Yessum.' "Tha's dangah ovah thah what you gwine, Reuben?"

"Yessum."

"Mistah Clay might git hurt."

"Yessum."

"Ef he does, you'll tek good keer uv him an' nevah leave him?"

"Yessum."

"Cross your heart an' body?"

"Yessum."

"An' then she reach out bof her little white hands, an' she tek ma two big rusty hands in her'n an' she squeeze 'em right bahd an' say, 'Reuben, I know he'll come back.' All thu time she look at me wif thu big eyes, an' I sho' an ready tuh swim thu rivah wif thu ice uh floatin', ef she say so."

"You know 'bout how we fit all round Ten'see an' Kentucky an' got ovah in tuh Virginuh, what thu bullets wuz thickest. Mistah Clay didn't nevah git uh scratch. All thu time I wuz wif him an' tukin' keer uv him. One night w'en we wuz in camp down thah in thu valley by thu Shenandoah, Mistah Clay tell me he gwine tuh uh dance at uh plantation 'bout five miles away, an' I mus' go 'long tuh take keer uv thu hosses. 'Bout uh dozen gemmen go ridin' out, an' I come 'long ahin' wif ma ole mule. We got tuh thu house, an' thu gemmen go in an' leave me outside wif thu stock."

"I git mighty trettin' out thar' on thu fence waitin'. By an' by uh niggah what b'long thah he come 'long an' he say:

"Ole niggah, don't you wan' be dane-in' too?"

"An' I say, 'Cose I do.'

"He say, 'Come 'long wif me. Tha's uh big dance 'bout uh mile down thu road. 'Twon't take long tuh git down. Jump on uh hoss an' gimme your mule an' we go.'

"I know 'kwants right an' I oughtn't leave Mistah Clay an' he friens, but I say, 'All right,' an' I give thu niggah ma mule an' I make uh loan uv Mistah Clay's boss. Way we go gallopin' des like uh couple uv gemmen, an' we git to thu cabin what they's danein'. We's boein' down lively w'en somebody say, 'Lissen!'

"Then I heah sumpin goin' pang, pang, an' I know what happenin' up thu road. I run out an' grab Mistah Clay's boss an' jump on, I grab thu ole mule's bridle an' go skeedaddin'. W'en I git thah they ain't uh soul in sight, an' it's all mighty still. No hosses at the fence, no gemmen; all quiet like. I kindah shivah w'en I git off thu hoss an' walk up to thu house. I see thu lights inside an' I kin smell the smoke what they been shootin'. I knock right sof' on thu do', an' uh lady come. I say, 'Lady, what's thu gemmen?' She say, 'They's all gone but one.' All tremblin' I say, 'Which one?' An' she say, 'Cap'n Baxtah.' 'What happen?' I say."

"An' then she tell me how thu Yankees come ridin' up while they wuz danein' an' thu gemmen had tuh make uh run fah thu hosses. Thah wuz uh little shootin', an' one gemman couldn't find his hoss. Then I know thu gemman inside is Mistah Clay. W'en I go in, I see him lyin' thah ez white ez uh sheet an' tryin' bahd tuh breathe. He look at me kindah longin' an' say wif uh little smile, 'Reuben, I'm sorry you tuk mah hoss.' Tha' wuz all."

"Tain't no use tellin' you 'bout thu res'. I went on wif thu army tell thu trouble wuz ovah. W'en it come time tuh go home, I couldn't. I des git wif some folks comin' this way, an' one day I fin' New York."

"But, Reuben, don't you suppose the Baxters would be willing to forgive your unfortunate carelessness?" "Yessuh, I reckon they would, but you didn't nevah know Miss Bell."

Untrustworthy.

"But Jones gave you his word, didn't he?" said Frisbie.

"Yes," replied Perkaskie, "but I don't like to take Jones' word. He won't even keep it himself."—Detroit Free Press.

When Patriotism Becomes a Vice

By MAURICE ADAMS, English Critic

PATRIOTISM is a virtue when it lifts us above selfishness, above a narrow absorption in the interests of our family; when it unites us, not only with our friends, but with those who are indifferent to us—nay, even with our personal enemies—in devotion to the common good of our country.

But when it leads us to hate foreigners, to nourish a blind prejudice against other countries, to rejoice in acts of injustice to other nations, to look upon other peoples as enemies, to desire to deprive them of land, wealth or freedom, to applaud and support a national policy of greed and grab in short, when it narrows our interests and our sympathies, fills us with stupid pride, hatred and contempt for other nations; when it makes our love and our devotion exclusive and not inclusive—when it does these things, PATRIOTISM BECOMES A VICE.

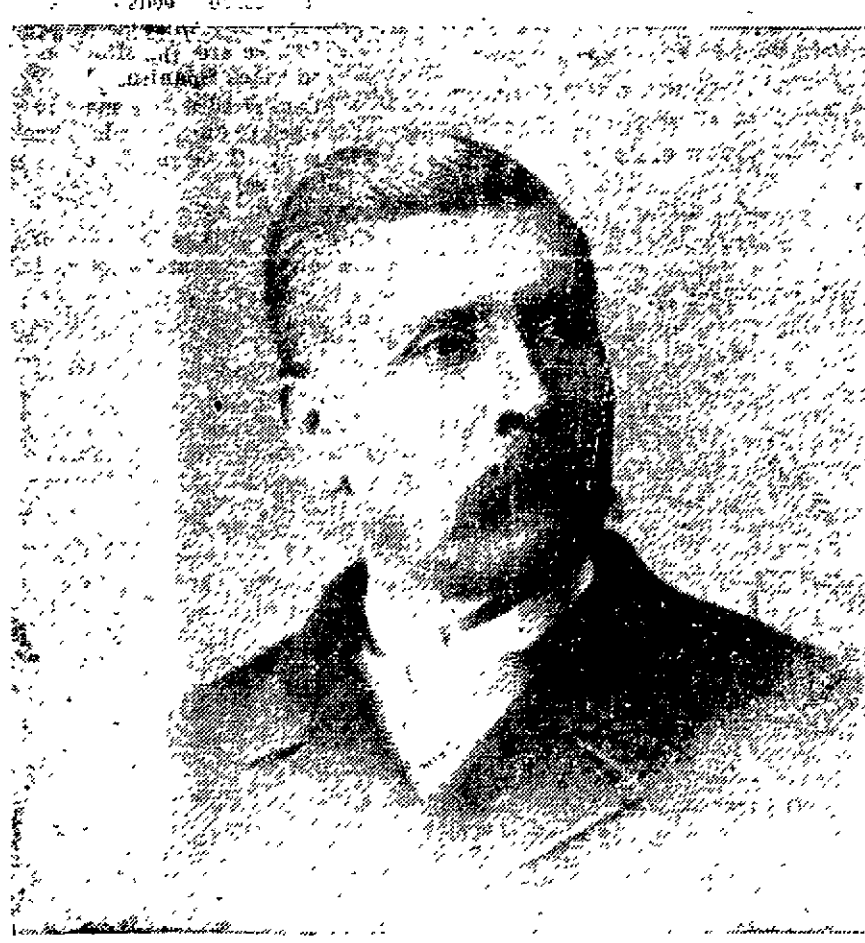

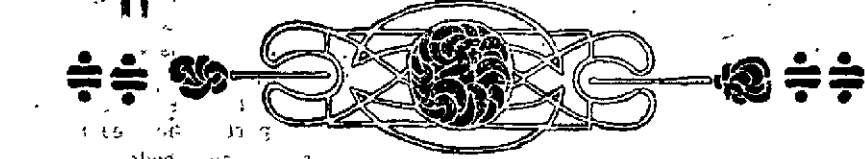

THIS PATRIOTIC HATRED, BASED ON PROFOUND IGNORANCE, IS ARTIFICIALLY EXCITED AND KEPT ALIVE BY ALL KINDS OF EXPEDIENTS. MOST IMPORTANT OF THESE IS THE INSTRUCTION IN "HISTORY," AS IT IS CALLED, WHICH WE RECEIVED IN OUR CHILDHOOD. OUR SCHOOL HISTORIES ARE FILLED WITH THE DOINGS AND CRIMES OF MONARCHS AND ARISTOCRATS AND THE WARS WHICH THEY BROUGHT ABOUT AND IN WHICH THEY WERE ENGAGED.

The national songs of most countries are inspired by hatred and defiance of neighboring nations. Take our own national anthem. Following on fulsome praise of the reigning monarch comes the following prayer:

O Lord our God, arise.
Scatter our enemies
And make them fall.
Confound their politics;
Frustrate their knavish tricks.
On thee our hopes we fix;
God save us all!

Anything more pagan and anti-Christian than this verse it would be hard to find. Note that the Lord is our God, our national tutelary deity, whose office it is to protect England and scatter her enemies, the other nations of the earth. They are to be confounded and made to fall in favor of "God's England," the divinely favored land of the whole world.

EACH NATION CLAIMS TO BE THE SPECIAL FAVORITE OF GOD, THE CHOSEN NATION, THE PECULIAR PEOPLE. IT IS PLAIN THEY CANNOT ALL BE RIGHT. IT IS PROBABLE ALL ARE WRONG.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Mr. Cramp on the Turret.

Mr. Charles H. Cramp, the veteran naval shipbuilder, has created a sensation by his letter to the navy department condemning the application of the superimposed turrets in the recent type of battleship. These turrets are to use the vernacular, two stories in design, the upper enclosure containing generally eight inch rifles and the lower er the usual heavy long twelve inch guns. They have been adopted after much discussion in the American navy, after having been discontenanced by every other country.

The comment of Mr. Cramp, coming from a practical shipbuilder of the highest repute, deserves and will receive the highest consideration and appears to be based upon the experience of naval men in actual engagements as well as upon his own judgment. A number of the heaviest of recent battleships have been fitted with this type of turret, which has, however, never been in use in battle, but has been in Mr. Cramp's estimation, to further complicate the handling of the guns in the turrets, already difficult by reason of the meager view of the target afforded by the periscope.

him. The next move of the flying squadron, he said, was from Key West to Cienfuegos, and the admiral told how, as the commander-in-chief of that squadron, he

Had the Vessels Coaled, so that at 7 or 8 o'clock on the morning of May 19, all the ships of the fleet turned their backs upon American soil and laid their course for the southern coast of Cuba. This, he said, was done under the order of the commander-in-chief, Admiral Sampson. At this point the witness quoted Admiral Sampson's order number five, not failing to point out as he went along, that in this order the admiral had said: "I have the situation well in hand and I will write you and give you any information that suggests itself."

In response to a request from Mr. Rayner, the admiral said that one of the places that had been recommended by Captain Chester of the cruiser Cincinnati, for coaling, was to the southward of Cienfuegos, in the open sea. "I did not agree," he said, "that that would be a good place to coal, because the condition in ordinary sea would be aggravated in shoal water." Admiral Schley placed his arrival off Cienfuegos at near midnight of May 21. He told of hearing guns early that evening while still 30 or 40 miles distant from the Cuban port. The admiral said that after inspection of the harbor he had taken a position with the fleet three or four miles out.

"Dear Schley" Letter. At 9 o'clock of the evening of the 23d the torpedo boat Dupont, the admiral said, arrived with a dispatch from Admiral Sampson. The dispatch referred to was the "Dear Schley" letter. Referring to this dispatch the witness said: "I did not remember the fact until within the past few months, because there were duplicates of that letter, but I now recall it from the fact that I sent the Scorpion to the eastward in obedience to the injunction contained in that letter to communicate with the scouts."

The admiral said that the Hawk arrived about 8 o'clock on the morning of May 23. This vessel, he said, had brought the dispatch from Admiral Sampson which is designated as number eight. This is the dispatch in which the commander-in-chief notified the commander of the flying squadron that the Spanish fleet probably was at Santiago, and directed him, "if satisfied that they are Not at Cienfuegos, to proceed with all dispatch to Santiago." Relating the fact of the arrival of the Castine and a collier on the 23d, Admiral Schley referred to his reported conversation with Lieutenant Hood, which, he said, "is one of the other conversations I do not remember. I think," he went on, "that I can show you by a memorandum of Mr. Hood's that if he had any verbal orders, he forgot to report them."

Admiral Schley said that on the night of the 23d he had seen three horizontal lights to the eastward and to the westward of the harbor at Cienfuegos. In this connection he referred to the fact that he had not been informed that there was any system of signals for communicating with the insurgents. He could not risk a boat through the surf at the time, even if he had.

On the subject of coaling Admiral Schley said: "After we got hold of colliers we were very much better fitted to resist shock as well as to deliver this coal rapidly. We had a good many accidents about which no mention has been made, because they came after the period of time. One of the colliers had to go to New York absolutely smashed in. The problem presented to me at Cienfuegos was to solve the problem of coaling, which has disturbed the navies of the world for 50 years. I think we accomplished this reasonably well under the circumstances."

The admiral then told of his sending Captain McCalla ashore and of the latter's reporting, about 4 o'clock on the 25th, that the enemy was not at Cienfuegos, which fact he had learned by communication with the Cubans on shore. The order was then given for the squadron to sail southward. Witness said the weather conditions on the night of May 24 and on May 25 were such as to preclude the possibility of coaling.

The admiral then told how, upon reaching a point southward from Santiago about 4 or 5 o'clock on the afternoon of May 26, he had encountered the scout boats St. Paul, Minneapolis and Yale, but he Digressed Sufficiently to refer to a dispatch which he mentioned his intention of delaying until the 25th his departure from Cienfuegos, which he explained was for the purpose of taking the Scorpion, which vessel had been expected back on the 24th or 25th. He then related the incident of Captain Sigbee's coming aboard the Brooklyn from the St. Paul and informing him that the Spanish fleet was not at Santiago. Referring to this visit the admiral said: "My habit of life, not only in principal command of a squadron but also in command of a ship, was to assume the responsibility and to venture the custody of any movement that might justify that, but that I was never willing, under any circumstances, to be a participant in glories I would not divide."

In this connection Admiral Schley explained his

Retrograde Movement, so-called, to the westward, saying that he had not considered the economical aspect of this step, as the economical features could never be taken into consideration in military movements. He had, he said, made careful inquiry as to the coal supply of the various ships, and had found it wanting.

Admiral Schley deplored that Admiral Cotton delivered him a dispatch from Admiral Sampson saying the Spanish fleet was at Santiago. He exonerated Captain McCalla from any intention to do him injustice. Admiral Schley referred to his famous dispatch to the navy department, in which the charge of disobedience of orders is based. He did not believe his message was mutilated intentionally. He wrote it in English and directed Admiral Cotton to put it into code. If the orders of the navy department had been obeyed, he said, some of his men might have been gibbeted as the naval officials had been misinformed as to the whereabouts of the Cuban insurgents.

SCHLEY AGAIN ON STAND.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Admiral Schley came early to court this morning. He was alert in manner, cheerful and free from any effect of the ordeal of yesterday. Then he was on the stand for two hours and was engaged without a single intermission in narrating the story of the flying squadron. He seemed prepared today to give another day or two to the theme with the same degree of composure and deliberation. The crowd this morning, as was to be expected, was the greatest since the inquiry began. Schley took the stand at 11 25 today.

Admiral Schley said: "With the court's permission I will go back to Cienfuegos and make everything clear. In regard to the McCalla memorandum, I desire to say I received but one copy. Were there others they would be found in my papers sent to the Navy Department. My letter of May 23 shows that I received it that day." He then read the letter. "Had I gotten it on the previous day I would have mentioned it."

Schley said that May 27, acting on nothing more than a suggestion from the Navy Department, he steamed toward Santiago, and there on the 29th discovered the Spanish fleet. He signalled Sigbee on the St. Paul, and Sigbee heard the news with great surprise.

Schley referred to the white uniform incident in which Lieutenant Potts charged that Schley said they were entirely too conspicuous in white and ought to get out at the time they went into fire on forts at Santiago. Schley said Potts was in error regarding the conversation, that white was the only wear for that climate and that the bombardment was entirely safe anyway.

AN EFFECTIVE REMEDY.

A Series of Orders That Rejuvenated the Ailing Slaves.

A correspondent sends the following story of an old Virginia gentleman: Some years before the war a gentleman of large landed interests counted among his possessions a plantation on the James river, an estate of considerable dimensions. Other interests kept him away from the old place for some years, during which time there was a marked decrease in the revenue. Upon his return to the plantation he discovered that many of the slaves were laid up with rheumatism and other miseries, the farming implements were in bad order and the old homestead was fast going to rack and ruin. Calling his overseer he said:

"Anderson, I notice a great many old wagons, plows and harrows about the place. Have them brought and piled in front of the house, and on Monday next order all the niggers on the place to be present."

At the appointed time they came. The pile was set on fire and the implements destroyed. The following week he called the overseer's attention to the sick and infirm horses, hogs and cattle and gave the same order. When the negroes had assembled all the animals were knocked in the head. The Friday following the landlord again called his overseer.

"Anderson, I see a great many sick niggers around here—many who seem to be laid up with rheumatism and are good for nothing. Give orders that on Monday morning at 10 o'clock they all appear in the front yard."

The effect on the slaves was magical. On Saturday men who had been unable to walk were skipping around like children; the sick grew well suddenly, and from that time on the plantation was most prosperous.—Exchange.

There is a spirited controversy going on among the ultra fashionables of the Loangos as to whether old coffee sacking with red patches sewed on here and there is the proper caper for a wedding dress, and the outcome is awaited with breathless anxiety.

A POSTAL DELIVERY.

AN INCIDENT OF REVOLUTIONARY DAYS IN CONNECTICUT.

A Letter From the Front That Came and Went and Came Again to Stay. The First Rural Free Delivery in Mansfield Town.

The arrival of the first batch of letters after the establishment of rural free delivery in Mansfield, Conn., recalled to an aged lady of that town a postal incident remembered in her family for 120 years. "My mother always cried when she told the story," she said.

When my mother was a little girl, the narrator went on, to have one's letters regularly brought and handed in at the door would have seemed a miracle of privilege, and to get them without paying postage would have been another. Mails were so slow and uncertain that the safe arrival of an expected letter by any means was an event in a country family, with the postoffice miles away.

Sometimes the delivery was helped along by volunteer carriers—a farmer going home from the grist mill, a housewife returning from market town with her bargains of lamp oil, West India molasses and green tea, or even a passing peddler with his load of tinware and corn brooms. In the old wartime the army had post riders, but they were few and far between.

My grandfather was a soldier of the Revolution, and grandmother kept the home fire burning here, and provided for their three children as well as she could while he was at the front. All summer she had heard no word of him, and when one autumn day a man in a military cloak rode to the door on a white horse her heart beat quick.

"Does Ruth Fuller live here?" he says, holding a thick letter in his hand. "Yes, I am Ruth Fuller," and grandmother reached eagerly for the letter, for she saw the address in her husband's handwriting.

"The postage is 2 shillings," grandmother's countenance fell, for there wasn't so much money in the house.

"Guess you don't know me," remarked the man, opening his cape and tipping back his cocked hat, but still holding the letter. She knew him then—an enemy capable of a mean revenge. "Ah, yes, you remember Tom Turner and how he asked you to marry him and you gave him 'No, I thank,' and took John Fuller. I wasn't good enough to marry you, but I'm good enough now to bring you letters from the man that did, and I'll give you enough to charge you a steep price for going out of my way. So hand over your 2 shillings and take your letter."

The poor woman told him she had no money. To be held up in this heartless and insulting way was a bitter hurt to her. Her grief was deeper than her resentment, but she was too proud to let the cruel fellow see her weep.

"I will get you a good dinner," she said, "and feed your horse and give you a pair of nice long stockings."

It was a humiliation to plead with Tom Turner, but she could do no less. "Money or nothing," he says, and he put the letter in his pocket and rode away.

Grandmother went into the house and sat down and cried, and her children, clinging about her, cried too. During her long months of waiting, at odd hours she had spun and woven cloth and sewed garments and knitted woolen stockings for John's winter comfort, trusting to find some way to send them to him. Now the messenger had come and gone who could at least have carried word, and he had refused even to give her husband's letter.

"Ma, God knows what the bad man did," sobbed one of the little ones. "He knows what nice things you've made for pa, and he'll send a good man next time."

The baby's thought relieved the mother's despair, and the three lonely hearts prayed and waited anxiously for the "next time," and, sure enough, before winter came they saw the same white horse galloping toward the house. "He's brought the letter back!" they all cried out together, for they believed the rider to be the same man.

Grandmother rushed from the door with all her children. The horseman held out the same letter, and as he gravely put it into her hands she glanced up to his face and screamed for joy.

"John! It is you!"

It did not take her husband long to tell the rest of the story. Tom Turner had returned to headquarters, and one night, made talkative by an extra ration of rum, he had bragged how he "got even" with an old sweetheart who filled him. His exploit reached the ears of his commanding officer, who took away his commission and put my grandfather in his place. The new post rider had brought his own letter to his wife. It was the first rural free delivery in Mansfield town.—Youth's Companion.

Cupid's Guide.

"In all my life," she said, with a sigh, "I have seen only one man that I would care to marry."

"Did he look like me?" he carelessly asked.

Then she flung herself into his arms and wanted to know what secret power men possess that enables them to tell when they are loved.—Chicago Herald.

Woman Goes Over Niagara Falls In a Barrel.

FEAT NEVER BEFORE ACCOMPLISHED.

Rode a Mile Through the Treacherous Canadian Rapids Before She Shot Over the Brink of the Precipice. Escaped With a Slight Shock and a Few Bruises.

Buffalo, Oct. 25.—A feat never before accomplished was performed by Mrs. Annie E. Taylor, 50, when she went over the Niagara falls, on the Canadian side, and survived. She made the trip in a barrel. Not only did she survive, but escaped without a broken bone, her only apparent injury being a scalp wound one and a half inches long, a slight concussion of the brain, some shock to her nervous system and bruises about the body. She was conscious when taken out of the barrel. Her trip covered a mile ride through the Canadian rapids before she reached the brink of the precipice.

As the barrel passed over the brink it rode at an angle of about 45 degrees on the outer surface of the deluge, and descended gracefully to the white, foaming water, 158 feet below. True to her calculations, the anvil fastened to the bottom of the barrel kept it foot downward, and so it landed. Had it turned over and landed on its head, Mrs. Taylor's head might have been crushed in and her neck broken. The ride through the rapids occupied 15 minutes. The barrel was carried swiftly down to the green water beyond the scum, then half way to the Maid of the Mist landing it was caught in what is known as the Maid of the Mist eddy, and held there until it floated so close to the shore that it was reached by means of a pole and hook and drawn in upon the rocks, 17 minutes after it shot the cataract. The woman said she would never do it again, but that she was not sorry she did it "if it would help her financially." She said she had prayed all during the trip except during a few moments of unconsciousness just after her descent.

The barrel in which Mrs. Taylor made the journey is 4 1/2 feet high and about three feet in diameter. A leather harness and cushions inside protected her body. Air was secured through a rubber tube connected with a small opening near the top of the barrel. Mrs. Taylor is a schoolteacher and recently came here from Bay City, Mich.

Mrs. Taylor's Object.
Bay City, Mich., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Annie E. Taylor of this city, who went over Niagara falls in a barrel, before leaving here said she desired to attract the attention of museum and theatrical managers in order to secure money to provide a home for herself. She said she was the owner of a ranch in Texas, left her by a relative, which was heavily mortgaged. She claimed she could receive advances of salary sufficient to meet the obligations.

A Graceful Backdown.
London, Oct. 25.—In an editorial dealing with the isthmian canal treaty The Times says: "We have never thought it expedient or reasonable to stand upon our strict rights under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. The canal is a magnificent project, and under the conditions described—namely, that the work would be defrayed out of the enormous American treasury surplus—it would result in low dues for the benefit of American trade, eventually benefiting other countries. It is a magnificent project which should be gratefully welcomed by the commercial world."

Ohio's Armor Plate.
Washington, Oct. 25.—A 6-inch plate from Bethlehem works, representing group No. 1 of the armor for the new battleship Ohio, was tested at the Indian Head proving grounds under the auspices of the navy bureau of ordnance. Three shots were fired, two at velocities of 1,903 feet seconds and the other at a velocity of 1,832 feet seconds. The deepest penetration was 2 3/4 inches. The test was most satisfactory. As a result 40 tons of Krupp armor will be accepted by the government.

Nothing of Miss Stone.
Washington, Oct. 25.—Nothing has been received at the state department from its agents in Turkey and Bulgaria touching the case of Miss Stone for the last three days. This fact is regarded by the officials here as indicating that these agents have not been able to secure a trace of the missing woman. Up to this moment the department has been dependent upon the missionary advices for news as to the movements of the brigand bands, having failed to get in touch through its own agents.

In Touch With the Brigands.
Constantinople, Oct. 25.—The missionaries who are operating from Samakov, Bulgaria, are at last in touch with the brigands who abducted Miss Ellen M. Stone and her companion, Madame K. S. Tsilka, according to dispatches received here, though whether negotiations for the ransom have actually been opened is not disclosed. The missionaries on the spot are expected to conclude the business with the utmost dispatch.

Creseus' New Record.
Kansas City, Oct. 25.—Creseus, at the Kansas City driving park, broke the world's trotting record for a mile on a half mile course, making the distance in 2:09 1/4. The previous record, 2:09 1/4, was made at Toledo. The time by quarters: 32%, 1:04%, 1:30%, 2:09%.

"Braver Men and Better Ships Were Never Built by Man"

By Rear Admiral WINFIELD SCOTT SCHLEY

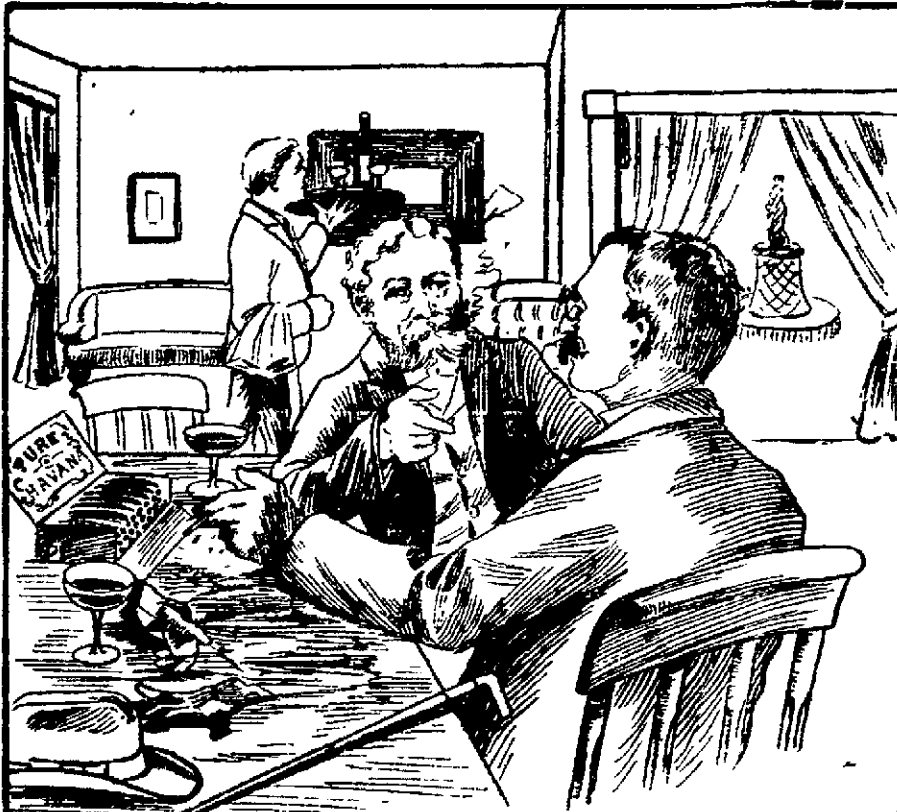

AFTER a patient and weary watching for many days under a tropic sun, surrounded by the most exhausting influences of climate, imperfectly fed, vigilant day and night, when the enemy moved, it is a high tribute to my profession to say, he was simultaneously discovered by every ship that had been set to watch. CERVERA WAITED UNTIL HE THOUGHT WE WERE ALL AT QUARTERS; AND SO WE WERE. The consequence was that when his vessels left the harbor in one minute and thirty seconds every vessel of ours was firing upon them. IT WAS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL SIGHT I EVER SAW IN MY LIFE. I was standing on the bridge of the Brooklyn, and the first impression created in my mind was that it was like Spanish bullfight, for they came out tail up and head down.

The admiral had been called shortly before to have a consultation with General Shafter, and, before leaving, the signal was made to disregard the orders of the commander in chief, which was a practical announcement to the squadron that the senior officer was in charge, and that officer, fortunately or unfortunately, happened to be myself.

The moment the enemy appeared the signal was hoisted for close action. It was followed by an immediate inward movement by the entire squadron. The Brooklyn was unquestionably the point of attack because she was the fleetest ship of the squadron. The storm of projectiles resembled very much a millpond during a hailstorm, but on such an occasion one has very little time to think of himself. The larger operations engross all his attention.

I WAS NOT AWARE PERSONALLY THAT A SHOT CAME WITHIN 100 MILES OF ME UNTIL A MAN WAS KILLED AND A SEARCHLIGHT KNOCKED OUT VERY CLOSE TO ME. WE HAD TO DETERMINE AT THIS TIME WHETHER TO TURN IN AND MASK THE ENEMY'S FLEET DURING FIFTEEN MINUTES OR TURN OUT TO UNMASK THEM. THE DECISION WAS MADE TO TURN OUT, AND THE RESULT WAS THAT IN TWENTY-NINE MINUTES AFTER THE ENEMY'S APPEARANCE FOUR OF THE SHIPS HAD BEEN ABSOLUTELY ANNIHILATED. DURING A RUNNING FIGHT OF FIFTY-FOUR MINUTES THE BROOKLYN WAS STRUCK OVER 100 TIMES.

She was assisted magnificently by the Oregon and Texas. Braver men and better ships were never built by mortal man. After the Vizcaya had surrendered I signaled the Texas to look out for her and started for the Colon, feeling, as Lord Nelson did at Trafalgar, that if one vessel got away the victory would be incomplete. I felt after that momentous day had ended that THE VICTORY WAS BIG ENOUGH FOR ALL OF US. I HAVE NEVER YET CHANGED MY OPINION.

OVER THIRTY CAUGHT

An Express Train Wrecked by Spreading Rails.

CARS WENT OVER AN EMBANKMENT.

Plunged Forty Feet and Were Knocked to Pieces by the Impact—Three Persons Fatally, Five Seriously and a Number Severely Injured as a Result of the Accident.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 25.—Passenger train No. 1 on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy was wrecked two miles east of the village of Exline. There were about 30 passengers in the coaches, and of these three were fatally and five seriously injured. The entire train, consisting of a coach and mail and combination cars, with the locomotive, went over a 40-foot embankment. The cars were all knocked to pieces.

The wreck is thought to have been caused by a rail turning where the track had been torn up. Exline is a small way station a few miles from the Missouri line.

Following is a list of the injured so far as known: James Mace, Unionville, Mo., hurt internally, will die; Wyman Zewright, Lancaster, Mo., injured internally, will die; John Zewright, Kansas City, Mo., breast and back hurt, serious; Miss Sophia Peterson, Cedar Rapids, Ia., limbs broken, badly injured; George Freeland, Brownings, Mo., back injured, badly; Mrs. M. M. Freeland, Brownings, Mo., injured internally, serious; Mail Clerk Moore, Bloomfield, Ia., injured about face and head.

IN THE BOERS' BEHALF.

General Pearson Seeks an Audience With President Roosevelt.

Washington, Oct. 25.—General Samuel Pearson, who is an adjutant on the staff of General Botha, one of the Boer leaders, has arrived in Washington. He hopes to enlist the sympathies of the people of this country in behalf of the Boer men, women and children who are now kept by the British in reconcentration camps. As the American consul at Pretoria watched after the interests of the British prisoners there, he declares it would be proper and just for the Boers to have the representative of some friendly government look after the interest of the reconcentrados. During his stay in Washington the general will seek an interview with President Roosevelt to acquaint him with the situation in South Africa. He also will make a further effort to prevent the shipment of mules from this country to South Africa and to have the cases carried to the supreme court of the United States. General Pearson says that President Kruger may visit the United States at some time in the future.

Omaha, Oct. 25.—Fire in the fertilizing building of the Armour Packing company's plant at South Omaha did $50,000 damage, equally divided between building and stock.

Automobile Record.

Detroit, Oct. 25.—All automobile records from 1 to 10 miles were broken at the Grosse Point racetrack here by Alexander Winton of Cleveland, who covered a mile on his big racing machine in 1:06 2/5, lowering Henri Fournier's record two-fifths of a second, which the latter made on the Empire City track Oct. 10. Winton covered 10 miles in 11:09 flat, and three times clipped two-fifths of a second from Fournier's mile record. This mark of 1:06 2/5, caught three different times by expert timers, is the fastest ever made on any track by any manner of vehicle.

Clergy Versus Laity.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Strife between the clerical and lay representatives in the American Missionary association culminated in a victory for the clergy. The principal struggle arose over a proposition that there should be only one corresponding secretary in the association, in place of three. This plan was presented by C. A. Hull, chairman of the executive committee, who was the acknowledged leader of the laity. A ballot was taken and by a bare majority the clergy won. Rev. Washington Gladden of Columbus was elected president of the association.

Russia's Promise.

Shanghai, Oct. 25.—It is reported here that General Yung Lu, in a secret dispatch to Li Hung Chang, asserts that the empress dowager is anxious to enter into friendly relations with Russia, which power has promised to prevent all foreign aggression and to protect the empress dowager at Peking. It is said also that the dispatch adds that Li Hung Chang must promptly conclude the Manchurian treaty, relying on Yung Lu to support him against the opposition of the southern viceroys.

Congressman Dead.

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 25.—George T. Barnes, congressman from the Tenth Georgia district in the Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first congresses, died at his home in this city. He was at one time a member of the national Democratic committee and prominent in party politics. He was 62 years old.

Neuralgia.

The Prayer of a Nerve for More Blood.

Neuralgia may attack any part of the body but most frequently occurs where the nerves are most abundant.

In the face.

Sometimes the heart nerves seem to twist, twinging rheumatic pains of the extremities.

Sharp and intense at times.

In the intervals dull and heavy.

Neuralgia is the result of impoverished blood, caused by impairment of the nerves—a lack of nerve force.

It is a disease of the nerve centers, and the pains accompanying it are a prayer for better nourishment. They are the danger signals which warn you against a total collapse of the nervous system.

Liniments and all external applications can only give temporary relief. Permanent cure cannot possibly come until the nerve centers are thoroughly revitalized by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. The beneficial effects of this great nerve restorative are felt thrilling through the nerve fibers as week by week and month by month the nerve force of the body is restored.

Women afflicted with diseases peculiar to their sex are frequently great sufferers from neuralgia. OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Women who have themselves suffered from the evil effects of constipation and indigestion will be interested in the following letter from a father whose daughter was given up to die by two physicians:

"My daughter has suffered from indigestion for the past five years and has tried nearly everything that she could hear of for such trouble. She was confined to her bed when she began taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and after one fifty cent bottle she is able to walk a mile at a time and during the day yesterday walked 3 1/2 miles. I feel like praising Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin because two doctors told me my daughter could never get well and I feel that she is on a fair road to permanent relief. Respectfully, J. H. M. Crocker, Nixon, Tenn., Aug. 6, 1901.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in fifty cent bottles and $1.00 bottles, under a positive guarantee, by Johnson and Hall's Drug Store.

AT THE STAKE

Southern Mob Burned a Negro for Assault and Battery Down in Mississippi.

Columbia, Miss., Oct. 25.—Bill Morris, a negro, who brutally clubbed and robbed Mrs. John Ball at Balktown, La., was burned at the stake by a mob. After being captured he made an effort to implicate others, but they soon proved their innocence. He was taken to the scene of his crime, tied to a pine sapling with chains, and his hands and feet chained to his body. Pine knots and pine straw were piled about the body and saturated with coal oil, and the whole set on fire. The negro made no outcry when the flames first reached him, and only when he was partly consumed did the spectators notice any movement on his part. He made no resistance when being bound to the stake and said that he deserved his fate.

Schooner Founders.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—The schooner Lida Fowler, from San Andreas for Philadelphia, laden with coconuts, ran into the wreck of the sunken schooner Lavinia Campbell, in the Delaware bay, and sank. The crew, with the exception of Steward R. R. Evans, were taken off safely. Evans went below to get his clothing and the schooner capsized while he was in the hold. The Fowler is owned by C. S. Crowell of Philadelphia.

Love Tragedy.

Denver, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Nellie Hardier, wife of Philip Hardier, a contractor, of this city, is dead from morphine poisoning, and W. H. Flanders, a Lyons, Colo. hotel man, is in a hospital and may die from the same cause. "We fixed it up to die together, for we loved each other and could not live apart," said Flanders, who is a married man. Should Flanders recover he will be charged with murder.

Boers and The Hague.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—It is reported the recent visit of Dr. Leyds and M. Van Der Hoeven, secretary of the Transvaal legation in Brussels, with a view of persuading Russia to initiate a movement to bring the South African issues before The Hague court of arbitration, accomplished nothing.

McGovern and Young Corbett.

New York, Oct. 25.—Terry McGovern, featherweight champion of the world, and Young Corbett of Denver, have signed articles of agreement for a 20-round championship contest on Thanksgiving day at Hartford, Conn., before the Empire Athletic club.

Appeal of Anti-Imperialists.

Boston, Oct. 25.—The Anti-Imperialist league issued a statement expressive of its hope that President Roosevelt will take the view that a colonial policy for this government is an impossible one.

All Crushed by a Falling Tree.

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 25.—Rev. Daniel Franz and wife of Fairview, Kan., were killed outright, and three others injured at Cedarville, by being crushed by a falling tree.

Section Men Killed.

Milan, Mich., Oct. 25.—Three section men were struck by the Wabash pan-American special near here and instantly killed. The dead: Timothy Lane, 50, married; John Skinner, 40, single; Harry Twigg, 30, single. All of Milan. The men had been down the road on a handcar driving some cattle off the track, and were returning to this village when struck by the train.

City Not Liable.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—By a decision of the supreme court the city of Chicago was relieved of all liability to pay the millions of dollars of damages claimed by citizens who assert that the value of their property has been lessened by track elevations. The court held that where improvements were made for public safety the city was in no way liable for damages.

Mrs. James Haughey is quite sick at her home on Granville street, with sciatic rheumatism.

Mrs. Evan Jones, formerly of Newark, and the mother of Mr. Orle Jones is lying quite sick at her home in Granville.

CZOLGOSZ DIES TUESDAY.

The Advocate published a special telegram yesterday from Auburn, N. Y., announcing that Czolgosz, the President's assassin, will be electrocuted at 7 o'clock next Tuesday morning, Oct. 29. Another evening paper last night fixed the date of electrocution Thursday, October 31. As usual however, the Advocate was right.

FOOD OF AMERICANS.

An English Woman Tells of the Strange Things She Ate Here.

An English woman who visited America a short time ago has been telling her country women about the "strange food across the water." Of course she discovered green corn, but she had been prepared for that. Oyster crabs were quite new to her.

"They look like Boston baked beans," she explains, "but they taste much better."

An oyster cocktail filled her with awe and enthusiasm. She tried it at Delmonico's and thought it was soup. Of course in England one didn't serve soup in a glass; but, then, neither did the English serve boiled eggs in a glass. One could never be sure of Americans.

Of canvasback duck she has a poor opinion, but thinks she might like it better if Americans would have it cooked or even warmed. As for terrapin, she sings its praise. She found it much like calf's head, and she always liked calf's head. Shades of Maryland gourmet, what a sin is there!

"All the puddings in America are pie or ice cream," she says, but it must be understood that pie does not mean game pie. The Yankee pie is a tart and is ubiquitous, she explains.

She sat next to an American man who ate a lump of cheese with his strawberry pie and turned a plateful of ice cream over both, but she doesn't know that that is a general custom.

The oysters were good, but had most impossible names, and the cockles (meaning clams) are excellent. On the whole, Yankee food and cooking are good, but there is too much of the food on the table at one time.—New York Sun.

Portrait of Cocker.

Edward Cocker, who lived in the reign of Charles II., is chiefly known to the present generation by the saying in common use, "According to Cocker," which means in accordance with arithmetical rules. I saw the other day amid the treasures of a private collector a copy of the first edition of Cocker's immortal work on arithmetic, published by T. Passenger at the Three Bibles on London bridge. Only two, or at most three, perfect copies are known to the book collector. One is in the British museum. This particular copy, its brown morocco pitifully faded, bears on its title page the inscription, "Cocker's Arithmetic, Perused and Published by John Hawkins by the Author's Correct Copy." It contains what purports to be a portrait of "ingenious Cocker." Experts, however, shake their heads over the authenticity of this work of art. There are many engraved portraits of the epoch, but there was only one Cocker. The British museum copy has no portrait, and there is too much reason to fear that this embellishment was added by some ingenious owner of an earlier century. Cocker died in 1675. This rare relic of the past bears date 1678.—Scotsman.

HEIDELBERG

Is to be Annexed to Western Reserve.

Ohio Bankers—James H. Smith Still Missing

Cleveland, Oct. 25.—Western Reserve university has been invited to annex the theological seminary of Heidelberg university of Tiffin. The question of taking in the seminary is now being considered by the trustees of the former institution. The basis of union, if the matter is carried through, will be that the present trustees of the seminary provide sufficient funds to establish it firmly as one of the departments of the university. After that Reserve will have entire control and the seminary will have the same support that is now extended to the several other departments. Heidelberg seminary is Calvinistic in its theology and Western Reserve is nominally a Presbyterian institution. A gradual decline in endowments and attendance because of the location at Tiffin is believed to be the principal cause for the present negotiations.

Ohio Bankers.

Cleveland, Oct. 25.—The convention of the Ohio Bankers' association was concluded with an elaborate banquet at the Hollenden hotel, at which 400 persons were present. These officers were elected: President, E. R. Sharp, Columbus; vice president, T. C. Knisley, Toledo; second secretary, S. B. Rankin, South Charleston; treasurer, H. C. Herbig, Coshocton. Next year's convention will be held at Cincinnati.

Mysteriously Missing.

Akron, O., Oct. 25.—James H. Smith of this city, chief train dispatcher of the Cleveland, Akron and Columbus railway, has been missing for more than a week, and his friends fear for his safety. Smith left the office a week ago, ostensibly to do an errand, and has not been heard from since. He is in no way involved at the office.

An Ex-Senator Touched.

Waverly, O., Oct. 25.—A bold pick-pocket touched ex-Senator John W. Gregg for a pocketbook containing $1,100 in notes, checks and bills. The robbery occurred while Senator Gregg was mingling with a crowd and he did not discover his loss for some time. The work is evidently that of a professional.

A Suspect's Confession.

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 25.—Henry Wiseman, in Jackson prison, confessed that he murdered Mrs. Ellen Huss in the woods near Royal Oak, where her body was found several weeks ago. The murder was committed in October, 1900. He admits that the sensational details he told implicating William Hale, with whom the woman had been living, were in reality what he himself went through on the day he met Mrs. Huss and took her into the woods, where the crime was committed. He refused to give a motive for the crime.

Grievances of Spanish Naval Officers. Madrid, Oct. 25.—The grievances of the Spanish naval officers, concerning which Admiral Valcacer, admiral of the fleet, recently submitted a memorandum to the queen regent, are the result of what they regard as a policy belittling the navy. The officers object to the creation of civil controllers of naval affairs and credits. They wish the government and parliament to declare, once for all, whether the existence of the navy is necessary, and, if it is, to provide for it.

The facts are no ironclad rule can be laid down as regards allowing a horse water, says a correspondent of National Stockman. The best of all and one that will hit more cases than any other is to allow the horse to drink when he first wants to. I hold without fear of contradiction that no horse with a normal stomach and good digestion was ever injured in the least by allowing him all the pure water of moderate temperature that he wanted. It is those with abnormal stomachs or weak digestion that require care in watering. People as a rule are far too cautious in allowing horses to drink.

Practically Stamped Out.

Smallpox made its appearance in Newark two weeks ago Thursday, and only owing to the prompt and efficient action of the Board of Health, co-operated in by the City Council, and the Health Officer, Dr. Henry Day, has the disease been practically stamped out. During the quarantine, which was promptly established, and guards employed, the city has been at an expense of $200 per day, and if no new cases appear, and those now having it get along as well as is possible, the cost to the city will be considerably over $3,000.

The schools will open next Monday.

Notice to All City Teachers.

All City School teachers will resume work on Monday morning, Oct. 28, 1901, the Board of Health having declared all danger from small pox over.

HEAVIER ENGINES REQUIRED.

The heavy traffic on the Pan Handle has necessitated the use of some Pennsylvania railroad class R and class I freight engines. These are rebuilt machines and are in fairly good shape. They are being used on through trains and local trains on this end of the main line. The Pan Handle is also using a number of Ft. Wayne engines for its through passenger runs. These are of the new Atlantic type and are splendid machines.

OHIO ROLLING STOCK.

The total valuation of rolling stock of railroads of Ohio as fixed by the local boards of equalization is $21,714,514, as announced by the state auditor. This is an increase in the value of $704,696, from the returns of the companies.
